

8 for 8: 2019 Dodge Dynasty Champion – Greg Perry

Congratulations to Greg Perry (aka Twitch) on becoming the eighth different Dodge Dynasty champion in the past eight seasons! As if destined to immediately win every fantasy league he enters, Twitch joins 2009 Jeff Pohlmann as the only Dynasty owners to inherit a squad & lead it to victory in their first year (with the same franchise, incidentally). There were no cheap victories in his title run either. Despite being the #5 seed, Team Twitch was red hot down the stretch averaging over 123 ppg since Week 10. Twitch defeated #4 Jeremiah Yugulis 100.5-83.7 in round 1, before raining fire on #1 Jay Carroll 137.5-93.9 in the semis and on despondent #2 George Hawke 145.2-112.5 in the championship game. Twitch's 145.2 points is a new championship game record, edging out 2015 Jeremiah's 140-116 title victory over Dave.

Five must be the magic number, as 5-seeded Twitch astonishingly becomes the FIFTH #5 seed in the past six seasons to win the Dynasty championship (joining 2018 Dave, 2016 Meat, 2015 Jeremiah, and 2014 Steve). Twitch was led by a host of young, budding superstars including Dynasty Co-MVP Lamar Jackson, Saquon Barkley, Derrick Henry, Davante Adams, and playoff MVP Kenyan Drake. Unlike the Cleveland Browns this mouthy team actually delivered, and has become a legitimate perennial contender that is well worth the hype. Congratulations Twitch!

Shout out to Jay Carroll for not only making his first Dynasty playoffs but grabbing the #1 overall seed and leading the entire league in points (1,355.1), and to Steve Miller for rebounding from last place a year ago to finishing 3rd in points this year, setting a league record for most points ever to miss the playoffs (1,286.2).

Thanks to all for another great Dodge Dynasty season, Merry Christmas & Happy New Year!
